CARNEGIE AFRICAN DIASPORA FELLOWSHIP AWARD

This is to inform the University community that the University has been awarded a Carnegie African Diaspora Fellowship for a project titled 'Curriculum Co-Development, Research and Mentoring of Graduate Students in Gender, International Trade Policy and Globalization'.

The 90-day project, which commences on 2 January 2014, involves Professor Mojubaolu Olufunke Okome, a Professor of Political Science at the Brooklyn College, The City University of New York, USA and Professor A.A.B. Agbaje of the Department of Political Science, Faculty of the Social Sciences.

The project strengthens the university's internationalization efforts by expanding curricular in relevant courses, exposing students and staff to varied international experience and enhancing international research collaboration.

The African Diaspora Fellowship Program is a prestigious program that provides the opportunity to actively engage with African Scholars in Diaspora and also enhances our institution's profile in the global scene.

During the 90 day project, members of the academic staff in relevant departments and students will have the opportunity to interact with Professor Mojubaolu Olufunke Okome for discussions.
